

How can I use these resources?

The Bible in the Life of the Church [BILC] project has commissioned a variety of educational resources. These are available either on the memory stick with the printed booklet or on the web. We are happy for you to print, copy and draw on these and to adapt the materials for use in worship or Christian education in your context. If you do use the resources in this way, we ask you to include the following:

- Where © appears at the end of the document that you include the name of the person who wrote the material and any other permissions that they have specified.
- You also acknowledge that the materials have come from “The Anglican Communion’s the Bible in the Life of the Church” initiative.

BILC has also identified other useful resources, produced by other publishers, that may be helpful for your ministry. These resources are often outlined in one of the INFORMATION SHEETS that point you to where these can be accessed or purchased.

BILC is simply making these resources known and offering you the details of how to get hold of them if you think they will be helpful. They will need to be purchased or accessed on the terms of those who supply them.
