International Anglican Women's Network

An Official Network of the Anglican Consultative Council

Progress report on implementation of resolution ACC 13-31

The International Anglican Women's Network is pleased to submit this progress report on implementation of resolution ACC 13-31.

In 2005, the Anglican Consultative Council passed the following resolution:

31. The 49th Session of the UN Commission on the Status of Women

The Anglican Consultative Council:

- a. receives and adopts the Report of the ACC Provincial Delegation to the 49th UN Commission on the Status of Women (UNCSW), and affirms the work of the International Anglican Women's Network (IAWN) in responding to the Beijing Platform for Action and the Millennium Development Goals (MDG), thereby carrying forward the full flourishing of God's Creation
- b. acknowledges the MDG goal for equal representation of women in decision making at all levels, and so requests:
 - i. the Standing Committee to identify ways in which this goal may appropriately be adapted for incorporation into the structures of the Instruments of Unity, and other bodies to which the Anglican Consultative Council nominates or appoints
 - ii. all member churches to work towards the realisation of this goal in their own structures of governance, and in other bodies to which they nominate or appointand to report on progress to ACC-14.
- c. recommends that a study of the place and role of women in the structures of the Anglican Communion be undertaken by the Standing Committee in line with the objects of the ACC "to keep in review the needs that may arise for further study, and, where necessary, to promote inquiry and research"
- d. requests that each Province give consideration to the establishment of a women's desk for that Province
- e. thanks those Provinces which sent participants to the 49th Session of UNCSW, and encourages those who did not to review their decision in time for the 50th Session in 2006 in solidarity with all women of the Anglican Communion.

Many people across the Anglican Communion have promoted this resolution. In particular, the Steering Group and Provincial Links of the IAWN have raised the importance of giving full voice to the women of the Church, including striving for equal participation of women on decision-making bodies.

This report refers in particular to points b.ii.: working towards the realisation of equal representation of women in decision making; and d.: establishment of a women's desk.

In response to two questionnaires, the Provincial Links have provided what information they could obtain to questions pertaining to participation of women, to the establishment and role of a women's or gender desk, and also on the ordination of women. Very few, if any, provinces have gender data on people, lay or clergy, in decision-making positions. Thus, it has been difficult for the Provincial Links to obtain information on exact numbers or percentages of women and men in decision-making bodies.

Below is a summary of the information obtained as of April 2009. Responses by province are given, followed by a table summarizing the statistics available at this time. Implementation is in progress and so is this report.

It is the strong recommendation of the Steering Group of IAWN that all provinces be urged to gather gender-disaggregated data pertaining to clergy and to all persons (clergy and lay) in decision-making positions. The IAWN will provide periodic updates as more information becomes available.

In addition, it is hoped that the study on the role of women in the structures of the Anglican Communion is carried out in the very near future. Such a study would provide details on the nature of their participation, suggest measures for their greater involvement, and indicate possible hindrances to their broader participation and ways to resolve them.

Do people (clergy and lay) in your province know about ACC 13-31?

Knowledge of this resolution is reasonably widespread but is probably not yet universally apparent! The Provincial Women's Studies Centre has used the resolution in all its correspondence and official reporting to date. The Resolution itself was most useful in advocating for the establishment of the Women's Studies Centre!

How did they find out about it?

The Provincial Media Liaison folks always make sure to circulate key resolutions from various international gatherings including ACC. Members of the Women's Studies Council (WSC) have taken responsibility for promoting the Resolution wherever they have been able to throughout the Province.

Has anything happened as a result?

There is a perceptible shift in consciousness among those responsible for appointments to decision-making bodies but it is still uneven and very dependent upon a small number of leaders known to be committed to gender justice. What WSC are concerned to do is not only to increase the presence/numbers of women across all the major decision-making bodies of the Church but also to equip women with necessary knowledge and competencies in order that they may contribute confidently and thus effectively.

Does your province have a women's desk?

In 2006 General Synod formally established a Women's Studies Centre, which is overseen by a Women's Studies Council and which reports directly to General Synod. At the 2008 General Synod it was agreed that each Diocese would appoint a link or liaison woman who would bring local issues to the Council and who would in turn be responsible for disseminating information, resolutions, actions, alerts, etc., from the Council to the local level. The additional layer of reporting and networking is intended to ensure the most comprehensive spread of critical information possible. The primary focus of the Centre is to provide support, resourcing, mentoring and advocacy for women either already involved in or women wanting to be involved in formally recognised forms of theological studies, especially those without ready access to an institutional educational base.

The Women's Studies Council have been granted funding to make an appointment to the Centre. The Council are currently in process of defining best possible strategy needed to enable as many women as possible to benefit from its existence.

Some preliminary exploration of the establishment of a database and a website have also been undertaken.

Are dioceses allowed to ordain women as deacons, clergy, or bishops? And, if so, how many women have been ordained to these positions?

The New Zealand Church has allowed for and been supportive of the ordination of women since the mid 1970s and the first Diocesan Bishop was appointed in 1990. There is no legislative or doctrinal obstacle to women's ordination in this Province. There is still however complex attitudinal resistance in various parts of the Church to the ordination of women.

- i. Deacons – many hundreds! – across each tikanga (cultural stream).
- ii. Priests – equally many hundreds – across each tikanga (cultural stream)
- iii. Bishops – two (both Pakeha) – one retired in 2004.

Australia

Do people in your province know about resolution ACC 13-31?

By 2007 General Synod resolution (moved by Kay Goldsworthy), General Synod has agreed to apply the principal of equal representation of women in appointment at national church level and has encouraged each diocese to do the same.

At present, several dioceses have made this commitment including Canberra Goulburn (moved Meagan Morrison), Grafton (moved Ann Skamp) and Perth (Kay Goldsworthy).

Has anything happened as a result?

In each case ACC 13/31 is now incorporated as a guiding principal in appointments to decision-making bodies.

Does your province have a women's desk?

Australia does not have a women's desk but it does have the General Synod Women's Commission which reports directly to General Synod Standing Committee.

If your Province doesn't have a desk, how are women's issues in the church raised and discussed?

Through the General Synod Women's Commission – the IAWN Link is an ex-officio member.

Are Dioceses within your Province allowed to ordain women as either Deacons, Priests or Bishops?

Yes

How many women have been ordained to these positions?

- i) Deacons
- ii) Priests 633 (= deacons + priests) = 16.6% of all ordained clergy in Australia
- iii) Bishops 2

There would be 23 deans (if all positions were filled) – given there are 23 dioceses. I don't think there are any women deans at present.

Any other information that relates to the above enquiry on equal representation of gender.

When speaking to Dr Jane Shaw (UK) at MOWatch she made the observation that there were very few women doing doctoral-level theology in Australia. Higher level theological education for women would seem to be an area needing some focus in the future.

BURUNDI

Do people (clergy and lay) in your province know about ACC 13/31?

Some of them.

How did they find out about it?

During meetings.

Has anything happened as a result?

Gender is always taken into consideration when it comes to representation but the percentage is still low.

Some Provinces have Women's/Gender desks or equivalent: If your Province does have a desk, what does it do?

It promotes gender equality and women empowerment. It allows women to meet and discuss women and family issues, share their experiences and plan what should be done. It also advocates for women and children, and represents the Anglican women in different meetings with partners like government and other organisations.

Are Dioceses within your Province allowed to ordain women as either Deacons, Priests or Bishops?

Any other information that relates to the above enquiry on equal representation of gender.

The low representation is due not to the policy hindering women ordination but to the lack of educated women which has social, cultural and economic causes. Women education should be the focus in order to increase their representation and their efficiency on boards.

How much does the Provincial church know about ACC 13/31?

Presentations to the House of Bishops, at Diocesan events and within parishes have always included an explanation of 13/31 along with an emphasis on MDG#3 which can be seen as the secular flip side of the ACC resolution. It has been the job of the Provincial Link to constantly use these two emphases in publications, talks and in communication with women or with bishops.

What results are seen?

The gradual familiarity with these two goals is evident in general conversations, and in the increased awareness of the need to recognize and utilize the distinctive gifts of women throughout the church at all levels.

Is there a gender desk?

There is no paid gender desk at the national level although there is space given to IAWN and IAWN-Canada.

Are Dioceses allowed to ordain deacons, priests and bishops?

Yes.

Any other information regarding the equality of women and men?

The prominence of the religious orders cannot be overlooked. These women write, conduct workshops, counsel, lead retreats, plan conferences and generally focus on the social justice issues that relate to their life of prayer. Many lay women are involved across the country in their efforts.

Women's organizations within the parish or the diocese hold notable positions and generally have the ear of the diocesan bishop and a slot at the diocesan synods.

There is a growing tendency to find more women than men enrolling in schools of theology and at this time they stand at around 60% of the total student body. Many of the teaching staff are women.

In general there is a belief that women have come close to men in representation. While this is not statistically true it remains as part of the rationale for not having a paid gender desk at the national level. The tendency in seeking participation on various committees is to seek youth of various cultures and geographic areas with less emphasis on gender.

Church House did not have the statistics available to hand on the number of clergy on General (Provincial) Synod. From my own observation at Synod in May, I would think that there are only about 16 female clergy out of the total 216 clergy members. As the list of Representatives only provides initials in names, I cannot determine who is male and who is female. Complaints were made from the floor this year at Synod regarding this matter and next year Christian names will be printed!

SCOTLAND*Do people (clergy and lay) in your province know about ACC 13/31?*

General Synod members will know about it, and the clergy should know. All members of the SEC's Mission & Ministry Board will know of it, as it was to this Board that this resolution was passed. However, few lay people are aware of it.

How did they find out about it?

General Synod papers, or papers sent to the Mission & Ministry Board

Has anything happened as a result?

The Mission & Ministry Board 'noted' the resolution at its meeting in September 2005. It was thought that representation on SEC Boards and Committees had a good gender balance, no further action ensued.

Some Provinces have Women's/Gender desks or equivalent: If your Province does have a desk, what does it do?

No Women's desk. The Provincial Church has been involved in specific issues through the existing Boards or Committees of the General Synod and other ecumenical initiatives such as domestic violence. In the past there have also been occasional meetings involving Bishops and women's representatives in relation to issues such as women's ordination.

Are Dioceses within your Province allowed to ordain women as either Deacons, Priests or Bishops? Since when?

Yes – legislation has been altered to admit women to all three:

Deacons	Date?
Priests	June 1994 – first women priests December 1994
Bishops	June 2002, but none yet elected

Accurate information on women being included on:

- General Synod: only a few women are normally involved at the provincial level = 10 women
- Diocesan Synods: Good representation, like ½ the number of men. = 25

- Executive Boards: Women have their own boards, where they are the majority.
= 15 x 24 dioceses = 360 members.
- Commissions: there are only four women on the commissions which are decision-making bodies. = 4 women.
- Other boards: Interview board, one woman. = 1 woman.

Ordination of women:

I am grateful that ordination of women in the Province of Sudan has now become very positive, compared to the previous years, although there are still a few dioceses which have not yet ordained women. The reason is that there are no women who are educated enough or have attended theological colleges to be recommended for ordination. And in principle the ordination to Bishop is approved, but needs qualifications.

Below is a table showing the number of women Deacons/Priests ordained according to Dioceses.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH (USA)

Has your Province done anything to further implement ACC 13/31?

Our province passed resolution D024 at its 75th General Convention in 2006.

Resolved, That the 75th General Convention of The Episcopal Church endorse, ratify, and implement Resolution 13/31 adopted by the Anglican Consultative Council at its meeting in Nottingham, England in June 2005, stating that there should be equal participation of women and men on all decision-making bodies of the Anglican Consultative Council and that all Provinces of the Communion should work to achieve that goal; and be it further

Resolved, That the General Convention urge and encourage all provinces, dioceses, and congregations of The Episcopal Church to work toward the same goal of equal participation of women and men on all their decision-making committees, commissions, agencies, and boards; and be it further

Resolved, That a reporting mechanism be developed in order to record the achievement of such gender equality, reporting those achievements annually to the Executive Council and to the 76th General Convention.

The Executive Counsel’s Committee on the Status of Women conducted a survey in May, 2008, of all our provinces’ dioceses in response to Resolution 2006-D024 to determine gender equity in elected diocesan bodies and chancellors. The response rate overall was 73% of domestic dioceses, 68% of all dioceses. The survey was conducted by email distribution and telephone follow-up.

The response rate by province was:

I:	71%	II:	73%	III:	77%
IV:	60%	V:	73%	VI:	75%
VII:	100%	VIII:	67%	IX:	0%

Notes: Boxes with “x” indicate no diocese reported any figures in that province.

Some dioceses appear to have included only lay delegates to diocesan convention, while some included clergy as well. If clergy had been reported, the percentage of female delegates to diocesan convention would have decreased overall, as male clergy remain in the majority in most dioceses.

Some dioceses were unclear about the difference between Trial Court and Court of Review members. Some did not report any figures for one or both.

How many women have been ordained to these positions?

- i) Deacons 1,543 or 56%
- ii) Priests 1,715 or 31.4%
- iii) Bishops 16:– 1 Presiding Bishop, 4 Diocesans, 7 Suffragans, 4 Retired

Please provide the number of members in the General Convention and officers at TEC level:*

Body / Post	Female	Male	Total
